WE NOMINATE

Howard W. Stepp, Chairman of the Princeton Development Council and Director of the Princeton University Summer Camp, who at 42—with 18 years of service behind him as coach of swimming—is the dean of all active Princeton coaches. Recently named Assistant Director of the University's Department of Intercollegiate Athletics, Stepp, ever widening the scope of his responsibilities, stands forth as one of this community's most versatile members.

A native of East Haven, Conn., and assistant to Yale's Robert Kiputh, the greatest of all American teachers of swimming, when he was summoned to Old Nassau, Stepp succeeded the late Frank J. Sullivan in 1928 and shortly thereafter Brokaw Pool became known as "Stepp's Ocean." He has since sent his teams into 159 meets and they have emerged victorious from 122 of them for a winning percentage of .767, one of the most sensational won-and-lost records in the century-long history of Princeton sports.

Stepp's reputation transcends national boundaries. In 1937, Poland called upon him for assistance and, until war surged over Europe, he devoted six months each year to advising the Polish Government in physical education and recreation as well as planning the Polish Olympic program. Former president of the New Jersey A.A.U., he is one of the wheelhorses of the various committees charged with the supervision of all swimming contests.

Acting Director of Princeton Athletics during the closing stages of World War II, his wartime achievements included two terms in the New Jersey Assembly, representing Mercer County; chairmanship of the State's Polish Relief Commission; membership on the New Jersey Defense Council; and supervision of vital American Red Cross activities. A trustee of the Princeton Country Day School and a power in County Republican circles, his efforts made it possible for the University Summer Camp to re-open this month at Blairstown for the benefit of 256 underprivileged boys from New Jersey and New York.

For extending to returned servicemen the kind of inspirational leadership that led one ex-GI to say "he is the main reason why I have come back to Princeton to complete my studies"; for his readiness to lend a hand wherever he feels his support is needed; he is TOWN TOPIC's candidate for October 7 . . . or November 5? Before another packed hall Monday night, Township Committee Chairman B. Franklin Bunn led his two fellow members through a motion to postpone a decision on the joint planning board until October 7. A second public hearing on the measure, hottest post-war potato to date, has been set for the occasion. It is wholly obvious that the meeting will be held elsewhere than in the usually adequate meeting hall on the Somerville Road.

On October 7, Mr. Bunn announced, petitions and other forms of written communication will be honored. (At this week's meeting, B. L. Gulick, Jr. had 673 names against the proposal). Between now and then, picket lines on both sides contemplate plenty of spade work.

Suggestion to the Township Committee: if the question is placed on the ballot November 5, there can be no recriminations. But what ever the decision, there is already talk of a contest next fall—the municipality's first in over a decade. Currently, Incumbent William T. White is unopposed.

Jets, Helicopters, Clippers. Princeton's Lions Club will sponsor an air show Sunday afternoon at the Nassau Airpark on the Brunswick Pike. Public Flyers, Inc., is presenting the show, with proceeds to benefit Princeton Hospital.

It is hoped that some 5,000 persons will turn out to watch a helicopter's fascinating maneuvers, a jet propelled plane fly for speed, an aerial troop per-

Maids and Matrons. Princeton's new-born anti-inflation organization, the Militant Marketers, continued to gather momentum this week, enlisting the co-operation of retailers in all fields and opening headquarters at 130 Nassau Street.

Most significant development in the Marketers' efforts to stress the dangers of inflation was the announcement by their 37-year old chairman, Mrs. Robert A. McManus, that the Marketers are not affiliated with any political party or "pressure group", are not plumping for revival of the OPA, will not use last OPA prices in establishing their price yardsticks.

Calling for "united thought and action on the part of consumers and merchants alike," the ambitious housewives will keep gimlet eyes on the cost of 57 necessities of life. Initial prices, to be charted for public display at 130 Nassau Street within the next week, will be determined by Marketers meeting with local retailers; prices will be revised weekly, showing trends in Princeton.

The Marketers' proposed mass meet-

News of the Theatres

The Playhouse

The Diary of a Chambermaid (Friday, Saturday) is a wobbly comedy set in 19th century France, starring come-on-eyed Paulette Goddard in a story gauged to be bad and bold. Failing of this, it is only occasionally amusing despite the best efforts of Miss Goddard, Frances Lederer and Burgess Meredith.

The Green Years (Sunday through Wednesday) is a weighty, solemn piece about strength of character as vested in an Irish Catholic orphan who struggles through poverty and myriad other misfortunes to his ultimate goal, medical school. This A. J. Cronin story is too long but stands up well as a so-called "human drama." The little-known cast is uniformly fine.

O. S. S. (Thursday, Friday, Saturday) offers the first thriller based on the exploits of World War II's "cloak and dagger" boys. Geraldine Fitzgerald and Alan Ladd are parachuted into Nazi-held France to aid the underground; from there on, it's a dizzy pace.

The Garden

The Runaround (Friday, Saturday) features Ella Raines, Broderick Crawford and Frank McHugh in a routine bit of slapstick about a man-hunting woman hunted by a private detective. It's not highly recommended.

Somewhere in the Night (All Week) stars John Hodiak and newcomer Nancy Guild in an exciting story about a marine veteran who simultaneously gets his discharge and amnesia. His efforts to reconstruct his past make a tense, action-packed picture. Better see it.

Sports in Short

Brother Act. This community's claim to fame in the tennis world now rests with the brilliant brother team of Don and Dean Mathey, Jr., sons of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Mathey, of Cedar Grove Road.

On July 6th, down at Charlottesville, Va., the brothers for the third time in four years, carrying the colors of Deerfield Academy, captured the United States Interscholastic Doubles Championship. For Don it was his third national title, and for Dean Jr., his fourth, inasmuch as the latter in 1945 paired with another Deerfield player, Florida's Billy Smith, to keep his racquet in the national spotlight.

Next fall the brothers, athletically speaking, will be separated. Dean Jr., 18, will enter Princeton University, while 17-year old Don returns to Deerfield for his senior year. This past year Dean captained the New England school's tennis team and served as co-captain of hockey; next year Don will lead both the Deerfield tennis and hockey teams. In addition, both boys are outstanding soccer players in a school that recognizes association football as a major sport.

Dean Mathey, their father, New York banker and University Trustee, won the national interscholastic singles diadem in 1908 and shared the national clay courts doubles title in 1915 and 1916 with George M. Church, one of Princeton's tennis greats, who in 1927 gave the University the eleven courts bearing his name for the use primarily of the varsity tennis team.

One of Three. The War Department this week announced that three "big name" college football coaches, including Princeton University's Charles W. Caldwell, Jr., have departed for American-Occupied Germany to conduct a two-week school at Stuttgart for the benefit of the servicemen who will be charged with the direction of football in the high-powered USFET league next fall. Singled out with Caldwell as GI Faculty Members were Henry Frnka, of Tulane University, and George Munger, of the University of Pennsylvania. School opens Monday, closes August 1.

TRICKS OF THE TRADE will be demonstrated in highly entertaining fashion by a helicopter Sunday, July 14. See it and many others at the Nassau Airpark's Air Show.

ing, to enlist community-wide interest, has been tabled as "unnecessary at this time". Instead, Princetonians will be canvassed by telephone, by personal contact along Nassau Street, by house-to-house bell-pushing. The organization is to be financed by sale of 50-cent "M M" window stickers.

Miscellany. Dr. Frank Aydelotte's latest book, a review of 40 years of American Rhodes Scholarships, reveals Princeton is in the lead with 61, Harvard and Yale follow with 46 and 43 . . . George F. Karch, senior councilman, will serve as acting mayor in the absence of Mayor Morgan and Council President Voorhees.

Small town note: the community is about to hire a dog catcher to enforce the quarantine . . . the last incumbent, who had successfully plied his trade in New Brunswick, quit cold in less than a week with the statement, "Them Princeton dogs is too smart." . . . cases of rabies have been reported in Hopewell, other counties have had trouble with herds of cows being bitten by rabid foxes.

Taxi owners, asking the Borough Council this week for future protection from encroachments by student jeeps, got little satisfaction . . . the mayor pointed out that many another business was subject to competition from self-aid students and from out-of-town interests . . . the Legion Post's July 4th program, which drew some 15,000 persons, was generally considered to be its best effort from among many good Palmer Stadium shows.
